

My family is proud to call Belle Haven home. My children are growing up here, and one is starting at Belle Haven Elementary this fall. I am running for City Council because District 1 deserves to be a thriving destination, not just a corridor people drive through.

As Chair of Menlo Park's Parks and Recreation Commission, I helped plan the Belle Haven Community Center and advocated for critical investments in our local parks. With experience as a staffer for two U.S. Senators and a career as a software engineer, I understand how government functions and how it can fail to deliver for neighborhoods.

Despite hosting world-class employers and thousands of daily workers, Belle Haven still lacks a local grocery store, sit-down restaurants, and family gathering spaces. I will fight for a walkable commercial core and thoughtful housing development, ensuring local tax revenue stays here to fund our parks, streets, and schools.

My standard for every decision is simple: Does it directly improve life for the residents of District 1 today? I prioritize real outcomes over bureaucratic delay. I would be honored to earn your vote to build a stronger, more vibrant community for every Menlo Park resident.
